

GREAT BOOKS

GRBK-1750 Great Books: Ancient World(3 credits) (Discretion of Department)

(Originally GNST-1750) This course is the first in a series of Great Books seminars. The students explore the ancient world through the great works of literature, history, and political philosophy. Students read the Greek and Roman authors in translation and engage in seminar discussions. (AE, WC, OC, WP)

GRBK-2750 Great Books: Medieval World(3 credits) (Discretion of Department)

(originally GNST-2750) This course is a second in a series of Great Book seminars. The students explore the medieval world through the great works of literature, history and political philosophy. Students read medieval authors in translation and engage in seminar discussions. (AE, WC, WP)

GRBK-2850 Great Books: Renaissance World(3 credits) (Discretion of Department)

(originally was GNST-2850) This course is one in a series of Great Books seminars. This semester the students will explore the Renaissance and Early Modern periods through the great works of literature, science, philosophy, and politics. Students will read authors in translation, and engage in seminar discussion. (PC, PI, WP)

GRBK-3750 Great Books: Modern World(3 credits) (Spring Semester)

(originally GNST-3750) This course is one in a series of Great Books seminars. This semester the students will explore the modern world through the great works of literature, philosophy, and politics. Students will read authors in translation, and engage in seminar discussion. (HI, WC)

Prerequisite(s): GNST-1750, GNST-2750, or GNST-2850.